

HISTORIC EDENTON, NC

MAY 15–17, 2024

Join the Arts Council to explore North Carolina's first colonial capital...Edenton. Located on Edenton Bay where the Chowan River meets the Albemarle Sound, Edenton offers an extensive historic district with architecture spanning 300 years. Designed by the Edenton Historical Commission, this tour immerses you in the history, sights, & sounds of what Forbes Magazine calls the "South's prettiest small town."

DAY 1 – WED., MAY 15

Simpson Whirligig Park

Whirligig Park

Enroute to Edenton, we visit the Vollis Simpson Whirligig Park, home to playful, 40' to 50' tall sculptures made from recycled materials that spin in the wind & bring joy to all.

Upon arrival, explore Edenton's downtown & enjoy lunch at your leisure before checking into the Inner Banks Inn, complete with southern hospitality at its best & a 3-course breakfast.

Hayes Farm

Next, tour Hayes Farm, a 100-acre, historic plantation that was once owned by Samuel Johnston, NC Governor from 1787-89. Its 1817 manor house was designed by British-born architect, William Nichols, & contains many original furnishings & outbuildings.

Enjoy a cocktail reception this evening at the James Iredell, Jr. Law Office/Edmund Hoskins Store. Dinner is at your leisure afterwards. The Inn's restaurant, The Table at Inner Banks, is highly recommended.

Explore Historic Edenton

Today, we start at the Penelope Barker House Welcome Center, the 18th century home to the leader of the Edenton Tea Party, a political protest to the Tea Act.

Edenton Trolley

After visiting the Edenton Historical Commission, we take the Edenton Trolley Tour for a trip through Edenton's 300+ years of history. Enjoy a special treat with lunch at the Cotton Gin Inn Culinary, then a walking tour of West King Street, one of Edenton's loveliest streets.

Cupola House

We then tour the 1758 Cupola House, a colonial house with exceptional interior carvings & original 18th century furnishings.

Enjoy free time for shopping, before a cocktail reception at the Chowan Arts Council & dinner at a private historic home.
